MANILA, May 17, (AP): Tropical storm Brenda, packing winds of up to 63 miles (100 kilometres) per hour, swept across the central Philippines today and headed for Manila, disrupting air service and forcing hundreds to flee their homes.

There were no immediate reports of damage or casualties from Brenda, the first tropical storm of the year to strike the country. But the storm knocked out communications to rural areas and disrupted power in Manila and other areas.

show of solidarity, had said they would not attend the summit unless all four were invited.

Dobben will serve a mandatory sentence of life in prison without pos-

The defence contended Dobben, diagnosed a paranoid schizophrenic, was insane at the time of the slayings. Brett Gardner, an assistant prosecutor, said Dobben killed his sons because his marriage of four years was failing.

According to testimony, Dobben loaded his wife and children in the car for thanksgiving dinner at his parents home but told his wife he had to get a Bible from his locker at the Cannon-Muskegon Corp. and show the boys where he worked.

As Dobben's pregnant wife,
Susan, waited outside, Dobben put

SALT LAKE CITY: A man convicted of manslaughter in the snake-bite death of a toddler asked the Utah court of appeals to reduce his sen-tence because he did not think the rattlesnake he drapped about the child's neck was dangerous.

Defence lawyer MacArthur
Wright told the court that his client,
Darrell Lawrence Wessendorf, "is a unique, different individual who has handled snakes for years and has been bitten many times. In his mind, they are not that dangerous."

Wessendorf, 25, was convicted of manslaughter in the May 7, 1987, death of a 21-month-old girl. He had drapped a rattlesnake around Steve Laren Kirkwood's neck and the rep-tile bit the toddler on the shoulder.

The court took under advisement arguments on whether Wessendorf's conviction should be reduced to criminal negligence. He was senten-ced to up to 15 years in prison on the manslaughter conviction. Criminal negligence, a misdemeanor, carries a maximum sentence of one year in jail. Barbara Bearnson, of the Utah attorney-general's office, argued in favour of upholding Wessendorf's conviction. "Reckless conduct is the standard for manslaughter and his conduct was reckless," Bearnson

But Wright contended Wessendorf had a "misperception" of the risks, believing the snake to be less dangerous than it was.

The self-employed horseshoer was charged with second-degree murder in the child's death but judge Philip Eves found him guilty Feb 24, 1988, on the reduced manslaughter charge.

During an April 11, 1988, sentencing hearing. Eves rejected a defence emotion for a suspended sentence, saying, "this court cannot look upon the taking of another person's life with the least degree of allowance."

Metallurgical test to confirm cold fusion

SALT LAKE CITY, May 17, (UPI): A key metallurgical test could confirm whether two electrochemists produced a nuclear fusion reaction in a tabletop experiment, a University of Utah physicist said yesterday.

The university has sent palladium elec-trodes to several laboratories to determine whether helium — a fusion by-product of two atoms of heavy hydrogen, hydrogen atoms with an extra neutron called deuterium — is present, said James Brophy.

"Everyone, including the sceptical physicists, agree that if a sufficient amount of helium 4 can be detected in the palladium cathode, that the only possible explanation for that is fusion," said Brophy.

Stanley Pons, university chemistry department chairman, and electrochemist Martin Fleischmann of England's Southampton University announced on March 23 they had produced cold fusion inside a metal electrode.

Steiger, the survivor

CANNES, France, May 17, (Reuter): After quadruple heart bypass surgery and a crippling case of clinical depression that baffled doctors, American film star Rod Steiger feels he merits the term "survivor."

"At my age there are 'veterans and survivors.' I seem to have become a survivor," 64-year-old Steiger said in an interview at the Cannes film festival, where he is promoting his latest movie.

Looking fit and tanned, Steiger explained he had only recently been cured of a hormonal imbalance that struck him down six years ago, leaving him unable to work.

"I came downstairs one morning, I sat down and I couldn't get up again. I was paralysed by depression," said Steiger, best known for playing a bigoted southern policeman in the 1967 story of American racism "In The Heat Of The Night."

The film, a British-French-West German co-production, examines anti-Semitism through the story of two teen-age boys, an aristocrat and a Jew, who are divided by the rise of Nazism. When Hans, the Jew, is forced to leave Germany, his friend, Konradin, tells him good-bye, saying "I think Hitler can save our country, He's our only hope."
"I'm sure in a couple of years you will be able to come back," Konradin adds.

Exxon probers told of errors

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, May 17. (UPI): A series of human and mechanical errors aboard the supertanker Exxon Valdez apparently mounted until the rip finally crashed into submerged rocks, causing the worst oil spill in US history, testimony at a formal inquiry indicated.

As the giant ship neared a tricky passage through waters mined with icebergs and rocky reefs, the captain was in his cabin, the lookout was 800 feet (250 m) behind the bow and the ship was not responding to the helm, testimony and investigative reports showed yesterday.

In 900 pages of federal investigation files released yesterday, the captain of the tanker told investigators he overestimated the ability of the third mate he left in charge to negotiate the passage through Prince William Sound, where the ship crashed into a reef March 24 and dumped 10.9 million gallons (41.3 million litres) of oil.

The files show that fired skip-per Joseph Hazelwood admitted to Coast Guard questioners that as captain of the ship "he was responsible (-but he had) over-estimated the third male's shiphandling ability."

Third mate Gregory Cousins, the first witness at the five-day National Transportation Safety Board hearing that began yesterday in Anchorage, testified that zeiwood asked ii de wi fortable with the responsibility of guiding the ship.

"Yes, I was," he said, adding it was not the first time he had been left in charge on the bridge, although he was unlicensed to sail such a ship in those waters.

Hazlewood refused to testify at the NTSB hearing because he

Women in bondage

Birth control inadequate

UNITED NATIONS, May 17, increase in world spending on encies): Access to birth control is inadequate in many countries and the world's population could almost triple to 14 billion in a century unless there is greater use of contraception, a UN report said today. There is "a cruelly inadequate supply of contraception to women who want it" and there are countries where most people have virtually no access to family planning, undersecretary-general Nafis Sadik said in the

About 465 million people practise birth control today and that number must increase to 1.218 billion by the year 2025 if population were to hold at 8.5 billion then and stabilise at 10 billion a century from now, said

Sadik, a Pakistani doctor.

If not, 10 billion would be the 2025 population total — with Asia's projected a 5.5 billion people accounting for more than the entire present global population of 5.2 billion — and 14 billion the stabilisation point, she said.

Sadik, executive director of the UN Population Fund (UNFPA), offered her projections in the latest annual series of documents on "The State of World Population." In her report, Sadik mentioned the damaging impact of an exploding population on the environment — currently a priority item in the agenda of many governments.

She also said women should have more access to education and employment,

Too many women remain trapped because of fundamentalist religions which "keep women in bondage" and cultural values that put men first, she said.

Appealing for a five-fold

"The status of women will be crucial in determining future population growth rates.

Half the world's women still have no access to family planning services — mostly women living in traditional male-dominated societies or areas remote from family planning services, Sadik

"Yet, this is precisely the audience we must reach if we are to have further success in our efforts," she said.

About 465 million women in the developing world, or 45 per cent, use contraceptives - 14 per cent in Africa, 50 per cent in Asia, and 56 per cent in Latin America.

It said that without China's extensive birth control programme the overall use of contraceptives in the developing world would drop to about 30 per cent.

To attain the desired drop in fertility, 58 per cent of women will have to be using family planning in 2000 and 71 per cent — the present level in industrialised countries - by 2025, it said. In sub-Saharan Africa, those using family planning would have to increase ten-fold.

Thirty-one countries in the developing world still have virtually no family planning facilities, the report said, and 37 of the poorest countries have cut health spending by 50 per cent and education by 25 per cent in the last four years.

Sadik accused religious leaders of being on "a power ego thing... They're reinforcing their authority. It's like all religious leaders...who do they talk to? They talk to the poor and the illiterate and those are the only groups they can really sway."

Sting bid to save Amazon

Moral support, no help

TOK YO, May 17, (UPI): British rock musician Sting, who is on a world speaking tour to raise money to preserve the Amazon rainforests, asked the Japanese government to donate $3.5 million to his cause but got only moral support, Sting's travelling companion said today.

Sting asked Japan's Environmental Minister, Masahisa Aoki, yesterday to donate $3.5 million to the Brazilian Rainforest Foundation, the group Sting established to raise money to protect 12 million acres (five million hectares) of the forests, said Belgian photojournalist Jean-Pierre Dutilleux, who is travelling with Sting.

"The ministry was supportive but they did not make any concrete proposal," Dutilleux said at a news conference. "In other countries we received concrete proposals," he said. Noway, Spain, England and Holland agreed to donate money to the project when Sting visited those countries, Dutilleux said.

Japan "gave spiritual support rather than factual support," said an official with the environmental agency who asked not to be identified.

World spent $34b on arms in 1988: study

STOCKHOLM, May 17, (Agencies): Fewer wars were fought last year, worldwide military spending declined and the global arms trade levelled off, reversing the warlike trends of the 1980s, researchers said today.

The number of hot wars fell during the year from 33 to 28, and others appeared close to a resolution by year's end, said the Stockholm International Peace Research Institute in its 1988 yearbook.

WASHINGTON, May 17, (Reuter): America's lead in defence-related technology is diminishing partly because of complex government regula-tions, Congress was told yesterday.

The message: high-technology firms prefer to do commercial work rather than cope with bureaucratic red tape.

A report by the congressional Office of Technology Assessment (OTA) said other countries were increasingly linking military and commercial technology and suggested US defence research be opened to greater commercial exploitation. The reprot was issued at a Senate Armed Services sub-committee hearing as the Defence Department, in a separate report, said Japan had a significant lead over the United States in some key high-technology

It said Soviet defence technology increasingly approached the US level and sophisticated weapons appeared in the hands of Third World nations shortly after they were introduced into Western and Soviet

The US defence acquisition system was slow, cumbersome and inefficient, partly because of the complex laws and regulations imposed on it,

Small "leading-edge" technology firms could opt out of defence work and make much more money in the private sector without having to play by government rules, the report said.

The Pentagon's own labs, it said, were the focus of rising concern "that they are inefficient, ineffective, self-serving, and duplicative of industry work, and increasingly hampered in doing their jobs by being part of the Senate defeats bid to scrap deal

WASHINGTON, May 17, (AP): The US State Department says new restrictions imposed by the Senate on President George Bush's plan to co-produce the FSX jet fighter with Japan may force the renegotiation of parts of the agreement.

The Senate yesterday voted 52-47 to defeat a bid by Democratic Sen. Alan Dixon of Illinois to scrap the FSX deal.

But it then adopted, 72-27, an amendment by Democratic Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, to tighten the conditons under which co-development and coproduction of the new fighter would take place.

Deputy Secretary of State Lawrence S. Eagleburger made it known immediately before the vote that the administration regards the new directives as unnecessary and likely to trigger new and lengthy negotiations.

The votes came after two days of debate in which Senators emotionally and anguly denounced Japan for allegedly unfair trade competition and sounded warnings that the deal could threaten US dominance of the aerospace industry by transfer-ring vital technology to Japanese industry

"It would be foolbardy not to be vigilant in protecting our aircraft industry and the vital technologies associated with it." Byrd said. "This nation needs to get our economic relationship with Japan on a sancr and soun-

Bonn bid to defuse crisis on

BONN, May 17, (AP): Defeace Minister Gerhard Stoltenberg headed for Washington today carrying what a leading newsplan for resolving the NATO dis-pute over short-range missiles. The Frankfurter Aligemeine Zeitung reported in a front-page article that Stoltenberg was carrying a new paper outlining exactly what Bonn wants with its demand that Washington and Moscow open negotiations to reduce the short-range rockets.

NATO plans call for produc-tion and deployment of a new short-range missile system to replace ageing Lance rockets based in Europe by 1995. The replacements would have a range more than triple that of the Lance systems. West Germany has basiked at the project partly because of its potential for upsetting East-West arms talks.

West Germans also are worried that NATO's short-range missiles, most of which are st in West Germany, would turn their nation into a suclear battlefield if they were used to repulse an attack by the Warsaw Pact's uperior conventional forces. Chancellor Helmut Kohl's government has called for delay of a go-ahead vote on the Lance replacement project, known in NATO circles as "modernisa-tion", and has instead insisted that the superpowers open a new round of talks aimed at reducing the sbort-range stockpiles.

The superpowers are already engaged in negotiations to reduce strategic nuclear missiles, and the 1987 INF treaty has set out the elimination of all intermediaterange rockets.

But Washington has refused talks simed at "the third zero," or elimination of the short-range systems, on the grounds that NATO should retain a nuclear response option as long as the Kremlin has a conventional arms advantage.

Bonn's call for short-range negotiations has broken with NATO strategy and caused a rift within the Western alliance that threatens to overshadow the NATO summit in Brussels on May 29-30.

The conservative Frankfurtbased Faz newspaper said in its report that Stoltenberg, who will meet with his American counterpart, Defence Secretary Dick Chency, would seek "a compromise in the rocket dispute before the NATO summit in Brus-9eks."

Transport Minister Friedrich Zimmermann was quoted by the Bild Am Sometag newspaper as accusing Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher of covering up his true disarmament aims.

Election nullified, opposition calls strike

PANAMA CITY, May 17, (AP): Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega's government is headed for a confrontation with opposition supporters today in a nationwide post-election strike that the government already has

The opposition called the one-day strike to protest the government's nullification of the May 7 presidential election and the beating of the opposition presidential and vice presidential candidates.

The government has published and broadcast warnings that the strike is illegal because it has political, not economic, motives. But it has not said what might be done to strikers.

The work stoppage coincides with the start of a special meeting of foreign ministers of the Organization of American States in Washington on the panamanian crisis. Both the government and opposition said they were sending representatives to the Washington meeting.

The government began con-tinuous jamming of US armed forces television at 10 pm yesterday (0300 GMT today) on the eve of the strike. Normally it only jams news programming before that hour. The jamming let only government-controlled television reach viewers.

As Panamanians braced for confrontation, the United States began evacuating military personnel, dependents and civilian armed forces employees and continued sending in troop reinfor-

WASHINGTON, May 17, (UPI): Federal agents have broken a major Panamanian network supplying up to 50 kilogrammes of cocaine a month to the nation's capital, arresting 26 of 32 people indicted on drug charges last week, US attorney Jay Stephens announced yesterday.

The smuggling network used at least two US military personnel as couriers and finnelled drugs to the Washington metropolitan area, to Colorado Springs, Colo., and Killeen, Texas, Stephens told a news conference.

He said nearly two dozen citizens of Panama were among those arrested but that it would be "speculation" to link the network to Panama's leader Gen.
Manuel Noriega, who already faces two federal drug-trafficking indictments.

The network shipped cocaine in several ways, at first by military transport and most often by commercial aircraft, moving the drug through New York and

Dr Rasha Al Sabah

Local press aiding progress

THE Vice Rector for Social Service and Information at Kuwait University Dr Rasha Al Sabah has described the local press as having been successfully able to reflect a true image of the Kuwaiti society.

She told a local magazine that the Kuwaiti press has to a great extent been successful in mirroring public opinion, given the freedom it currently enjoys. She described Kuwaiti woman as having shown greater ability and made illustrious achievements which deserve to be nationally lauded. She said the Kuwaiti press had greatly contributed to guiding the national aspirations of educated youths and further encouraged the development of the national cadre to contribute actively to the national development process.

The Arab information media paid little attention to the substantial issues of women, and had yet been unable to fully portray the true picture of the Arab woman's status quo, she added.

Sabah pointed out that the success so far made by the Kuwaiti women in various areas is measured by present achievements, which are attributed to dedicated national loyalty. > will end soon. The wheat cultivation experiment seems to be successful and calls for optimism according to the Director of the Botanic Resources Department at Kuwait's Public Authority for Agriculture Affairs and Fish Resources, Jassem Al Bader.

In an interview with a local daily, Al Bader said that the Authority has been involved in this experiment without any previous experience, and despite the climatical fluctuations and the scarcity of fresh water, the authority has within a short period handled several issues in this respect successfully including the extending of the necessary technical consulta-tions to farmers in addition to the submitting of agricultural requirements such as manure, seeds in addition to the ploughing of agricultural lands.

He clarified that the continued concern showed by Chairman and the Director-General of the Authority, Sheikh Ibrahim Al Duaij Al Sabah constituted a the encouraging of the many agricultural specialists and technicians to be in touch with the farmers for extending the necessary technical assistance which may be required during the wheat cultivation

He confirmed that the authority will conduct a comprehensive re-evaluation process on the experiment in the wake of the harvesting season in order to determine the necessary measures that may help the farmers in the future.

Meanwhile, the daily toured the Al Abdali wheat farms and interviewed a number of farmers to find out their opinion on the success of wheat cultivation rocess in Al Abdali area.

Mustaf Rabea said that his farm plan-ted about 350 hectares and the experiment was successful.

He added that the authority had provided him with six threshing machines, but said that the irrigation process at the farm was depending mainly on spray irrigation, and could have been improved upon.

Abdul Jalil of the Agricultural Food

Product's farm confirmed that each 1000 square metre were yielding about 400 kilogrammes of wheat, describing the experiment as successful particularly in the light of the previous experiment of the farmers in general. He clarified that the wheat seeds submitted by the authority to the farmers had been designed to resist the saltiness in the soil and was available in large quan-

He said that it is important to continue growing wheat in order to meet a part of local requirements, noting that his company will go ahead in this respect and hoped that the support of the Public Authority for Agriculture Affairs and Fish Resources will be continuous to enhance this strategic commodity.

Meanwhile, Abdul Jalil suggested cancelling the subsidies extended to tomato and cucumber growers in order to allocate more subsidies for wheat cultivation.

He called for the using of modern agricultural equipment in the wheat cultivation, clarifying that the authority had spared no efforts to achieve this purpose, and that the authority's officials had exerted remarkable efforts towards the success of the wheat cultivation experiment in Al Abdali.

In conclusion has called for the using of organic fertilizers in the future, particularly those from well-known com-panies, noting that three kinds of fer-tilizers help preserve the moisture in the soil for longer periods and eventually reduce the saltiness in the soil.

Meanwhile, the secretary of the Board at the Public Authority for Agriculture Affairs and Fish Resources Amir Marafi has said that the board had recently held a series of meetings at which major agricultural policies were discussed including the role of the authority in supporting the agricultural sector.

Gulf important to US, Japan TOKYO, May 17, (KUNA): Though it is widely believed that the Arabian Gulf is the key to peace and war in the future, the people of the region are willing to see their region as the key to peace only, Kuwait ambassador here Abdel Aziz Al Sharikh

Sharikh made the statement in the context of a lecture he delivered today within a programme organised by the Tokyo-based US Chamber of Commerce and Industry in the presence of a large number of US and Japanese businessmen and

The Kuwaiti diplomat, in a comprehensive address, presented a Gulf view of the "Triangle of relations: the Gulf Co-operation Council (GCC), the US and Japan."

Stressing the strategic importance of such relations, he pointed out the significance of GCC oil reserve which is equal to 50 per cent of the world's oil reserve, and the GCC reserve of natural gas which stands at 20 per cent of that of the world.

During this current decade, Sharikh said, Japan imported 60 per cent of its oil needs from GCC states, noting that no oil producer will be able to terminate dependence of Japanese economy on Gulf oil, let alone the strategic importance of the Gulf oil to the LIS and its European ellipse. to the US and its European allies.

The geo-political importance of the Gulf region was greatly demonstrated through the implicit Soviet-US co-operation to safeguard Gulf waterways during the last two years, he said.

The Kuwaiti ambassador highlighted that the drop in oil prices did not halt the development strategy in the Gulf states, citing the example of Kuwait's approximately 1.5 billion US dollar contract signed with Mitsubishi to construct the Sabbia electricity plant.

The GCC states' financial and investment weight has been highly assessed by US and Japanese busi-ness and finance circles, Sharikh said, urging the US and Japan to increase their investments in the GCC states where adequate and appropriate opportunities are available.

The diplomat said that the US and Japan have to be aware of the fact that Gulf stability and security are dialectically associated with a lasting and just settlement to the Palestinian question.

Such a settlement, he elaborated, requires serious and clearly a fair and balanced stand by the US.

The Arabs, who appreciate Tokyo's attitude in connection with the Palestinian question, believe that Japan has to adopt a more dynamic approach that gives further impetus to its stands in this regard.
It is natural that Washington and Tokyo respect the GCC states' policy of conscious neutrality, nonalliance and non-involvement in international conflicts, said Sharikh who urged the US and Japan to understand the Gulf states' determination to develop and diversify their economics.

The Gulf states, Sharikh underlined, are quite aware that a secure and prosperous future for their peoples and generations to come cannot be guaranteed through full depletion of oil and purchase of manufactured commodities with its revenues. This can be secured only by means of balanced, overall development and through diversification of income resources, he said.

The Kuwaiti medical team is employing a purposely equipped aircraft to lift the victims of violence in Lebanon, he said.

Another similar Kuwaiti primamiarian mission world be. launched within days to bring to. Kuwait for treatment casualties, from East Beirut using Larnaça, as it conduit, the diplomat said.

Head of the Kuwaiti medical team. Dr Mohammed Al Menai, told KUNA before departure Tuesday that the Boeing 767 had been furnished by the Health Ministry with the needed enter gency equipment and medicines and is expected to fly back home Wednesday.

He said some 70 people were expected to be lifted for treatment at Kuwaiti hospitals and said injuries were believed to range from severe burns and fractured bones to bullet wounds and concussion. --- -- -----

Slapstick, comedy—and a little basketball

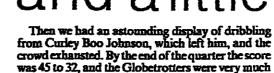

THE Stars and Stripes and the strains of Sweet Georgia Brown filled the Al Arabi stadium in Mansouriyah on Tuesday when the Harlem Globetrotters and Washington Generals came to town as part of their Winston Middle East Tour.

The Globetrotters dominated the stadium from the moment they came in, but the undoubted star of Tuesday's game was Sweet Lou Dunbar, who set the pace and provided most of the comedy. Dunbar is a 6ft 10" giant who works hard to be the bane of the court officials - but he quickly established himself as the man the handful of boys lucky enough to sit near the court would most like to meet again.

At one point, growing tired of his opponents, he called a young boy named Abdullah down from the VIP stand, and gave him the opportunity of trying out for the Washington Generals — with a little help

The prowess of the Globetrotters is dazzling, and laughs abound, whether from the fooling around, straight slapstick, or verbal idiocy. All the old favourites are there - many people know about the trick with the ball and the elastic, but nobody in the stadium last night could have been expecting it to happen just then.

Of course, there was just a little basketball along the way, to keep the evening flowing. Once or twice the teams even seemed to be indulging in a real match, particularly in the opening minutes of the second quarter where a succession of no-nonsense baskets from the Generals levelled the score. The Globetrotters responded with some excellent nofirlls play, and moved ahead once again.

in control. Court jester Michael Memphis Douglas took over the comedy for a while, mimicking the ref, and convincing the little boys in the audience that they were about to be drenched with water, but everyone was waiting for Dunbar to come back.

It was very hard to believe the earlier claims that the game was not rigged in any way, but moments when the Generals had to mark time so that the Globetrotters could go into their routines were offset by others when the game did at least appear to points in the last minute of the game. The final score was 78:72.

In all the Globetrotters provide a superb evening's entertainment, though sadly, the stadium was only half full. There are so few performances of this quality in Kuwait, that it's a shame that more people don't travel to see them. Anant Kapadiya, the event's promoter also brought the Bolshoi Ballet and the Red Army to Kuwait, and deserves unqualified congratulations for trying to bring events of this calibre here.

The pace of the evening never flagged, and I left with the urge to return the following evening and watch it all again.

The guest of bonour was Sheikh Ali Abdullah Al Salem Al Sabah, the Chairman of the Al Arabi Club.

Wife beaten

THE Court of First Instance upheld the verdict issued by the Court of First Instance granting a woman a divorce on grounds of physical abuse by her husband. The wife told the court that her husband used to beat her badly and produced medical evidence to prove her statements.

The husband had appealed the judgment initially passed by the Court of First Instance.

Few shops holding May sale

A LARGE section of merchants including electrical and electronic dealers in Kuwait boycotted the year's May sales, according to a survey conducted by a local delly. Merchants said that the Ministry of Commerce has imposed a minimum of 20 per cent discount or a maximum of 10 per cent profit from the cost price as the selling price to be athered to by merchants if they are to be eligible to participate in the May sales. The ministry also stipulates that mer-chants participating in the sales display their entire range of com-modities twice each year.

Alocal daily interviewed a namber of consumers to highlight their views on the intue. Hasain Oadah, a cus that the market offers better deals during normal periods rather than that sales are not gennine. Prices are very good, specially after the end of Eid bolidays, he said and d: "There is a normal drop of prices everywhere."

Another customer, Um Mesleh commented that she would rather buy electrical appliances during the sales as she gets better deals. However, she said that maintenance guarantees are generally not provided during sales. "During the sales, main distributors sell at higher prices than tranches or other shops," she said. Another customer said that sale prices are identical to prices during normal days. She added that merchants resort to this trick to get the interest of customers. "The only difference is the manner commodities are displayed and advert-ised," she said.

Busy week for Fire Department

KUWAIT'S Fire Department attended a total of 45 different accidents during the period May

These involved 19 fires in various residential areas resulting from electrical short-circuits, carelessly thrown cigarette-ends and electrical overloads.

The accidents also involved nine burning cars, seven result-ing from an electrical short-circuit, one from a road accident and another from an ordinary flat tyre.

The department also performed seven rescue operations, of which one involved the release of two persons locked up in a room without a key, one involved the freeing of passengers trapped in a lift, one of people trapped inside an overturned car and one of a man trapped underground after falling in a pit while drilling.

Democracy – a luxury in Africa

By Colleen Lowe Morns

ACCRA, Ghana: The West African nation of Ghana recently completed a round of elections that said much about the difficulty of transplanting Western concepts of democracy on this continent.

Judged by those concepts, the district assembly elections were a "nonsensical exercise," says a Western diplomat in Accra. The elections, which ended in late February, were staggered over three months were contested by people without party affiliation, and will send winners to a national assembly by means not yet spelled out.

But many Africans argue that a combination of culture, strong regional loyalties, and the imperatives of development make Westernstyle democracy and political pluralism a luxury they can't afford. Ghana's election highlights a number of these issues, which are pushing a growing number of African countries toward single-party.

One-third of the National Assembly will be filled by government appointees — an arrangement officials say is necessary to ensure sufficient expertise in the body, given the country's high rate of

And, Ghanaian officials justify the non-partisan nature of the local elections as in the country's best interests.

"The party system in Ghana in the past polarized the country to an extent where it was difficult to build any kind of consensus," said secretary for local government Kwamina Ahwoi.

Critics say such are the classic arguments put forward by African leaders to justify their autocracy. "Organised political groups are the paranoia of any politician," says a Ghanaian opposition figure who has been detained several times. "Who is taking the decision that parties are not working? Those who want to stay in power, of course.' In former colonies such as Mozambique and Angola, the stronges parties in the struggle for freedom assumed power at independence and Most countries where the transition to independence proved more peaceful initally adopted Westminster-style multiparty systems. But these soon fell to military juntas, as in the case of Ghana and Togo, or converted to one-party systems, as in the case of Zambia, Malawi, Tanzania, and Kenya, to name a few. Several efforts have been made by military governments to hand over to civilians following elections. Nigeria's military government, led by Maj. Gen. Ibrahim Babangida, says it will hand over to a civilian two-

However, an almost universal feature of previous efforts by the military to make way for civilians - in Nigeria and elsewhere on the continent — is that the succeeding governments have been short-lived. Of more lasting impact are the efforts — such as in Ethiopia and Zaire — by long-entrenched military juntas to create their own single political

About half a dozen African countries claim to have multiparty systems, though some of these claims are arguable at best. In Zimbabwe, the ruling Zimbabwe African National Union and the opposition Zimbabwe African People's Union signed a merger agreement last year leaving, in effect, only one opposition member of parliament. President Robert Mugabe has indicated that the British-brokered constitution that ushered in Zimbabwe's independence in 1980 is up for review next year, at which time the de facto one-party system in Zimbabwe is enshrined in law.

Ghanaian leader Flt Lieut Jerry Rawlings remains vehemently opposed to a multiparty system.
"Party politics has tended to be a competition, on the one hand to y in power and on the other hand to ous! the ruling party and get into power," Lieutenant Rawlings said in a recent interview. "So much time and money, not to mention acrimony, has been spent on this, instead of being channelled toward positive development.

Candidates in the recent district elections had to subscribe to the broad policies espoused by the military "provisional national defence council," but stood on their own individual platforms.

The Ghanaian opposition source criticizes this approach as an element of authoritarian paternalism in the attitude of those who argue that they have determined the political course for everyone." If put to the test of a national referendum, as was done in Algeria earlier this year, African elites would be surprised at the public opinion in favour of the multiparty system, this source argues.

Willie Musarurwa, a former editor of Zimbabwe's widest circulation newspaper, the Sunday Mail, and a respected commentator on African political affairs, agrees. But Musarurwa says that political pragmatism rather than his gut feelings convince him that the one-party state is the only way to go. In both Zimbabwe's indigenous Shona and Ndebele languages, he points out, the words "opponent" and "enemy" are synonymous, and "the idea of a loyal opposition is quite alien."

African political parties, such as ZANU, which has its power base among the Shona, and ZAPU, which had its power base among the minority Ndebele, tend to be formed along regional and ethnic lines, Musarurwa adds.

These factors, the political analyst contends, combine to make "violence an inevitable component of most multiparty systems in

The few countries in which the multiparty system has worked, such as Botswana, are characterised by a high degree of tolerance particular to that culture, Musarurwa observes. In addition, "the opposition parties are so small as to render them a nuisance value, rather that a real threat to the status quo."

For most African countries, according to Musarurwa, it boils down to a simple choice between "the anarchy and violence of the multiparty system" or "the peace with the possibility of dictatorship" offered by

In Zimbabwe, for example, soon after the announcement of the merger between the two main parties, attacks in the southwest ZAPU stronghold of Matabeleland "miraculously vanished," he notes. 1989, The Christian Science Monitor.

Gorbachev leads revolution in foreign policy

KREMLIN leader Mikhail Gorbachev, who met China's senior leader Deng Xiaoping on Tuesday, has revolutionised Soviet foreign policy with a series of bold initiatives but face a rougher ride with domestic

Since taking power in March 1985 at the age of 54, the youngest Soviet leader since Josef Stalin has wooed world public opinion with a brand of 'new thinking' that had little in common with the hard line of Rejecting ideology-based confrontation in favour of co-operation. Gorbachev concentrated much of his early efforts on relations with Washington, helping to drag superpower relations up from the cold war lows of the early 1980s.

But the eyes of the Kremlin leader have also long been turned towards the east, and, by travelling to China for the first Sino-Soviet summit in 30 years, he has put a formal end to decades of enmity between the two communist giants.

A peasant's son from southern Russia with a Moscow university degree in law, the stocky and balding Gorbachev has often portrayed his policies as revolutionary and as an attempt to make up ground lost under Stalin and Brezhnev.

As the scale of his ambitions became clear, so did the extent of resistance from the vast party and government bureaucracy. He has pressed on regardless, often appearing to appeal over the heads of the bureaucrats to the people.

Gorbachev has forced a major reshuffle in top political posts which resulted in the replacement of more than half the government's ministers and a large number of the powerful republican and regional Communist Party first secretaries.

He process reached a climax this April with a bloodless purge of the party's policy-making central committee in which 110 leading communists, many elderly conservatives, were sent packing.

Although making clear his unwillingness to weaken either his own or the party's iron grip on power, Gorbachev has also attempted to inject a large dose of democracy into the country's authoritarian one-party

The process culminates on May 25 with the inaugural session of a new legislature, the Congress of People's Deputies, after the first contested parliamentary elections in more than 70 years of Soviet Gorbachev's fresh approach soon brought results in foreign policy, where he has worked together with Eduard Shevardnadze, a fellow 'new thinker' whom he named in July 1985 to replace veteran Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

With US-Soviet ties at their lowest level for decades, Gorbachev moved towards accommodation with US President Ronald Reagan and helped turn summits between the two leaders back into regular a pledge by Vietnam, with Soviet backing, to withdraw from Cambodia, it also removed what had been a major stumbling block to normalisation of relations with China.

Despite his successful pushing through of political reform, Gorbachev's doemstic records has been more patchy, particularly in the economy, where he has faced an uphill struggle to loosen the dead hand of decades of central planning.

The liberalisation of the political climate also allowed an eruption of long-standing grievances among many of the country's 100 or so various national groups which the Kremlin has appeared unable to

In the most dramatic example, more than 90 Armenians and Azerbaijanis died in ethnic clashes over the disputed Azerbaijani territory of Nagorno-Karabakh last year. Violence broke out again in the enclave in recent weeks.

Afghan government holds on

Najibullah proves tough foe

:: By Nassir Shirkani

WHEN the last Soviet soldier headed home from Afghanistan three months ago, mujahedeen rebels and their Western allies rubbed their hands and predicted a swift march to power in Kabul for the guerrillas.

"The Afghan government is like a building without girders. Most diplomats in Kabul say t could fall any time between now and July, said Charge d'Affaires Jon Glassman as he removed the Stars and Stripes from the US embassy.

He then bade farewell to the chill Afghan capital before the final Soviet pullout on February 15. The entire Western diplomatic corps packed up and followed him, citing security reasons in a city which they thought would soon become the mujahedeen capital.

But the pro-Soviet government of President Najibullah has proved a tough foe ready to fight to the bitter end and shows no sign of falling.

For the Muslim guerrillas, victory has been elusive. They have found obstacles on the road to Kabul even without the Soviet troops who had helped prop up the government since

They set up a rival government and launched an offensive against the eastern city of Jalalabad in the hope of capturing it as a provisional capital within a short time of the Soviet pullout.

They took heart from initial gains but government troops, relying on air power, beat

Palestine priority at Arab summit

By Zina Hemady John L. Carl Jr.

THE Palestinian issue is likely to oversitistics any efforts to expethe Lebanese crisis at an Arab League stimulit distro-opini in Casabilanca

Political sources and analysts do not expect Arab leaders to adopt any major resolutions on Lebanon, despite fears that fresh fighting across the Christian-Muslim divide could crupt at any moment.

"The most prominent issue in the Middle East now is the Palestinian cause and not Lebanon," one independent analyst commented on

A precarious truce remains in place in Lebanon after more than 350 people died during eight weeks of artillery bombardments, the worst in 14 years of civil war.

"The strongest step the summit is likely to take is a call for an end to violence and support for Arab efforts seeking to resolve Lebanon's political crisis," a pro-Syrian politician said.

The Arab League appointed a committee early this year under Kuwaiti Foreign Minister Sheikh Sabah Al Ahmed Al Sabah to try and end the 10-month-old constitutional crisis that has left Lebanon with two governments, a deadlocked parliament and a divided army.

The latest fighting broke out in mid-March when Christian army commander Michel Aoun, who heads an interim military administration, sought to extend his power beyond the Christian enclave.

The crisis intensified when Major-General Aoun vowed to drive the 40,000 Syrian troops in Lebanon from the country and launched venemous attacks on Syrian President Hafez Al Assad He is opposed by a mainly-Muslim cabinet led by acting prime condemned Aoun, who has in turn received backing from Syria's arch "These are fears that the Middle East conflict may be resolved at Lebanon's expense, with Syria and Israel remaining in the areas they control and the partition of the rest into religious cantons," the independent analyst said. Who is going to speak for Lebanon at the summit? Is it Iraq or 4 Syria? They're both fighting their war in Lebanon and neither is interested in bringing peace to the country," he added.

Besides the Syrian forces, Israel has about 1,000 troops in a 15-km (nine-mile) wide border strip it maintains as a self-declared security zone along its northern border in south Lebanon.

The Arab League has not yet issued an invitation to Lebanon to attend the summit, apparently fearing both the Christian and Muslim-led administrations would choose to attend and formalise Lebanon's partition into confessional mini-states.

Both Aoun and Hoss have hinted they would attend if Lebanon is

Initiative

The League launched its boldest initiative on Lebanon in a decade when it brokered the current ceasefire after setting up the special committee to end the political impasse. Political analysts said the summit might speed up the deployment of a 320-man ceasefire monitoring team.

Syria and other Arab states originally went into Lebanon in 1976 as an Arab deterrent force in an unsuccessful bid to halt the civil war. Syria remained when the other nations withdrew and is now the main foreign Political analysts said Damascus opposed any other Arab or international intervention in Lebanon, which it looks on as a major bargaining card in an overall Middle East settlement.

The Christian placed little faith in the summit, especially after an Arab foreign ministers' meeting in April failed to touch on the withdrawal of foreign troops from Lebanon, he added.

A Christian government source said: "If Lebanon becomes the victim of Arab reconciliations, we will resort to international bodies.

The Arabs will not ask Syria to withdraw. We consider the summit to be a step before internationalising the Lebanese conflict."

Aoun has sought a UN security council debate over Lebanon to condemn Syria and call for its withdrawal.

But analysts doubted whether the United States or the Soviet Union, a close ally of Syria, would put pressure on Damascus as a major player in any Middle East Peace conference. "Aoun launched his attack against Syria too early. The Arabs and the West are now preoccupied with the Middle East conflict. Lebanon's crisis comes in second place," the independent analyst commented.

'Dialogue not gun' Iran smuggled explosives

NICOSIA, May 17, (Reuter): Ayatollah Khomeini's son confirmed in a letter publi-shed yesterday that Iranians smuggled explosives into Saudi Arabia in 1986.

Ahmed Khomeini said he had written the letter in Ettelaat newspaper to help explain in his father's sacking in March of Ayatollah Hossein Ali Montazeri, who had been designated to succeed Khomeini as supreme leader.

The letter referred to an incident three years ago in which Saudi Arabia charged that Iranian Revolutionary Guards planned bombings to destabilise the kingdom and disrupt the haj. Ahmed quoted passages from a letter dated Oct 9, 1986, in which Montazeri discussed

Libya campaigns against Arab summit

DAMASCUS, May 17, (Agencies): Syrian Foreign Minister Farouq Al Shara flew to Zimbabwe yesterday for a meeting that could end a five-and-a-half-year feud between Syria and the PLO and brighten prospects

In another development, Arab League secretary-general held talks here on Egypt's readmission to the

A senior Palestinian official said Al Shara would have talks with Farouk Kaddoumi, the PLO's Foreign Minister, at a non-aligned ministerial meeting in Harare.

"This meeting is the first step for ending divisions between Palestinians and Syrians ... There is an agreement in principle to have discussions," said Khaled Al Majed of the Palestinian Popular Struggle Front, one of several radical Palestinian groups based in the Syrian capital.

He said that Syrian President Hafez Assad probably would meet PLO chief Yasser Arafat during the May 23-24 Arab League summit to be held in

Casabianca, Morocco. "The summit will provide a suitable atmosphere for a reconciliation" that would be consolidated in further talks between Syrian and Palestinian officials, he said. Arafat visited Damascus in April last year in an effort to heal the rift with Assad, who expelled him from Syria in June 1983 at the height of their feud for con-trol of the PLO.

But the meeting made no progress in solving their differen-ces. It was held after the burial in Damascus of Arafat's deputy, Khalil Wazir, who was assassinated in Tunis on April 16, 1988 by a commando unit believed to be Restoring relations with the PLO would cap recent moves by Syria to moderate its traditional hardline stance and play a more prominent part in Arab affairs.

On Sunday, Syria indicated it had lifted objections to Egypt's return to the Arab League by saying that President Hosni Mubarak's participation in next week summit was a "positive development."

Arab League Secretary General Chadli Klibi left Damascus today after talks on the Lebanese crisis and Egypt's readmission to the league.

King Hassan, who helped rally the Arab world around the Fez plan on Middle East peace in 1982, launched his appeal for the May 23-24 summit in March. He said the Arab world should rally behind a new peace strategy adopted by Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat, but rejected by Israel and criticised by radical

"The decisions of this summit will put an end to any remaining doubt regarding the non-equivocal Arab will to build peace and to live peacefully with regarding the non-equivocal Arab with to brind peace and to two peaceting with all the states in the region," King Hassan declared in his March speech.

Diplomats say the King made his move in close consultation with Saudi Arabia and Egypt to breathe fresh life into Arafat's strategy, strengthen his hand in talks with Washington, and to keep the radicals at bay.

Arafat is hoping Arab countries expected to make the running at the Casabianca summit — Jordan, Egypt, Morocco and the Gulf states — will be able to increase pressure on Washington to force Israel to give ground.

The Palestinian leader unexpectedly arrived in Morocco last month to urge King Hassan to push for the summit at a time when Saudi Arabia, originally due to hold an ordinary summit, was backtracking on the subject because of inter-

The revised wording takes up "the request for the admission of Palestine (instead of the state of Palestine) as a member state of UNESCO," the agency said.

If the executive council, the ruling body of UNESCO, approved the application, it then would be sent to the UNESCO general conference to be held this fall, where it would require a two-thirds majority to go through. Palestinian killed in West Bank

Shamir's peace plan approved

OCCUPIED JERUSALEM, May 17, (Agencies): Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir won Parliament approval today for his peace plan after overcoming a challenge from right-wing legislators in his own Likud bloc who complained it could lead to creation of a Palestinian state.

The vote, after more than seven hours of sometimes-acrimonious debate, was 43 in favour and 15 against, with 11 abstaining. But 51 legislators were not present, including-some Likud members who walked out before the vote-of-confidence motion was called.

The Likud dissidents included two cabinet ministers: Industry Minister Ariel Sharon, who has led the battle against the plan, and Economy Minister Yitzhak Modai, who has called on Shamir to resign.

Malaysian minister in Kuwait economic talks

KUWAIT, May 17, (KUNA): Kuwaiti Minister of Finance Jassem Mohammed Al Khorafi conferred here today with his Malaysian counterpart Daim Zainuddin who arrived here today on a two-day official visit to Kuwait. The meeting, attended by Finance Ministry undersecretary Abdel Mohsen Al Hanif, deputy undersecretary for economic affairs Mustafa Al Shimali, and director general of Kuwait Fund for Arab Economic Development Badar Mishari Al Humaidhi, tackled a number of economic and other issues concerning the two countries.

The meeting also was attended by the deputy managing director of Kuwait Investment Authority Badar Rashid Al Badar and administrative director of Asian investment at the authority Salwa Al Razougi.

Later, Minister of Commerce and Industry Faisal Al Khalid met with the Malaysian minister and discussed ways to promote trade, economic and investment ties between the two countries. Zainuddin invited Khalid to visit Malaysia.

Dollar hits 2-1/2-year highs

The dollar hit 2-1/2-year highs today after better-than-expected US trade figures were published.

The US currency hit 1.96 marks after news that the US March trade deficit narrowed to $8.86 billion from a revised 9.82 billion in February.

Dealers said the data pointed to an improvement in the US economy which would make dollar investments even more attractive. "This is an incredible number," said Marc Cohen, corporate foreign exchange man-ager at Republic National Bank of New York. The dollar leapt by more than one pfennig on the news, It had closed in London last night at ten already-high US interest rates, one of the main factors supporting the currency.

But the overall picture looked better for the US economy, which would attract more money into dollars for investing in the United States, they said. British stocks rallied to extend earlier gains. London's FTSE index was 27.4 points higher at 2,164.1 points at 1310 GMT. This was its highest since the global stock market crash of October 1987.

London currency dealers said they expected central banks to mount another offensive to fight a sustained dollar rally.

The dollar has now powered ahead by more than five pfennigs in the past eight days because of fresh investor confidence in the US government's fight against inflation, prompting talk of a two-mark dollar being reached

"This (deficit) is at the lower end of market estimates and as such will give the dollar another push up, especially as most market participants have been looking for further reasons to carry on the bullish trend," said an analyst with Midland Bank in London.

Economists had generally forecast the US March trade deficit at $10.2 billion.

Exports jumped 7.4 per cent to a record $30.78 billion in March. outpacing a three per cent rise in imports to $39.64 billion, the US Commerce Department said.

World Bank loans for Tunisia and N. Yemen

New aid

WASHINGTON, May 17, (KUNA): Tunisia, Yemen and Turkey will benefit to the tune of a total of $180.8 million in domestic development loans and credits, the World Bank announced here today. The bank broke down the new aid as follows: Yemen Arab Republic a $10.8 million credit meant to strengthen Yemen's public administration and help government operations. Some 8,000 Yemeni civil servants will be trained locally and abroad in new management - Tunisia a $95 million loan for improving education and training systems, with 1,600 primary and 300 secondary schools rehabilitated 95 new high schools to be built and far-reaching training and technical assistance in educational systems-management to be made available. The loan also will pay for equipment for developing vocational training centres in collaboration with industry associations run by the government. -Turkey a $75 million loan for provincial health services, intended to help some six million people in Turkey's less-developed provinces with basic health services and to bolster management of the country's health

The $75 million loan will go toward supporting Turkey's $146.3 million project to construct 500 health posts, 60 rural and urban health centres, four district hospitals and a network of laboratories and vehicle-maintenance workshops. The total Turkish project also calls for the upgrading of several hundred existing health centres, hospitals, health colleges and the purchase of a new ambulances, furniture, training materials and a management information system.

Yemen's credit is for 40 years (with 10 year's grace), Tunisia's loan is for 17 years with five year's grace and Turkey's loan is for 17 years with a five-year grace period.

Plan to protect investment

Kuwait team arrives in Bonn

BONN, May 17, (KUNA): A team of Kuwaiti investment officials arrived in Bonn yesterday for talks here on agreement with West Germany for protection of investment

The Kuwaiti delegation groups senior executives of the Kuwaiti Investment Authority with two representatives from the Foreign and Finance Miniscare system.

Today the delegation will begin three days of talks with representatives of several West German ministries and the Federal Central Bank (Bundesbank), German sources said.

A spokesman for the Federal Economy Ministry told KUNA the two sides had previously exchanged proposed drafts of the agreement on investment that they will be trying to finalise in this round of talks.

Officials from the Kuwaiti Foreign and Finance Ministries last year signed an agreement in Bonn on elimination of double taxation which went into effect retroactively in 1980.

The agreement was enforced when the Federal Parliament and the Council of Local Governments endorsed it last month.

Readjustment needed Tarkit blames poor Kuwaiti exports

KUWAIT, May (KUNA): Kuwaiti exportoriented companies will have to re-adjust to cope with the market variables, or else pull out of the competition with the least damage, a seminar on development of Kuwaiti exports has been told. This approach was recommended to the Kuwaiti firms by director general of the marketing department of the National Industries Company, Salah Al Tarkit, in a paper to the seminar which ended its discussions today. Al Tarkit blamed poor

Kuwaiti exports on a host of factors, chief among which, be said, were: high production costs, poor capital-return ratio, and obstacles imposed by importing governments. He also cited the paucity of exportable goods, lack of marketing experience, poor production technologies and fluctuation of demand at the international export market. The seminar, organised by the Islamic Development Bank and the Kuwaiti Finance House, also debated Kuwait Industrial Bank and the Islamic Development Bank.

Automakers view methanol as the fuel of the future as a paint thinner and windscreen washer, could be tomorrow's automotive fuel.

Carmakers in the United States who are researching methanol say it just may be the long-sought clean-burning fuel of the future. "Methanol has one of the best long-term prospects," said Roberta Nichols, head research engineer for Ford Motor Co's alternative fuel

Methanol, cleaner than petrol, is abundant domestically and it is easy to convert petrol-powered cars to it, researchers said. "And it's peppier," added Nichols. The big three US automakers - Ford, General Motors and Chrysler - are researching alternative fuels in part to address air pollution concerns caused by conventional cars. Air quality in at least 60 US metropolitan areas currently violates federal pollution standards and a number of cities and states in the next decade are expected to enact legislation requiring alternative-fuel

In California, the South Coast air quality management district is considering requiring 70 per cent of trucks and 30 per cent of cars to run on alternative fuels by the year 2007.

Ford has already supplied 630 methanol-powered cars to California, said Nichols. General Motors will begin delivering 2,500 such cars to California this mouth.

Ford is negotiating a similar contract with California for 2,200 flexible-fuel vehicles, a company spokesman said.

Chrysler has no such contract but has developed its own flexible-fuel vehicle and a pure methanol-powered car, Chrysler spokesman Ben Dunn said.

However, there are drawbacks to methanol. The major obstacle is the cost of switching to it, researchers say.

Getting the fuel distributed and stored nationwide in new noncorrosive fuel tanks would cost billions of dollars, said Vito Stagliano, policy director at the US Department of Energy.

But mass-producing cars powered by methanol would cost only an additional $240 per vehicle, he said. Manufacturing methanol would not be a problem. It can be obtained Manufacturing methanol would not be a problem. It can be obtained from natural gas fields, decomposed agricultural waste and from coal. A methanol plant would cost about $250 million to build, roughly the same as an oil refinery, Stagliano said.

Despite the costs involved, methanol supporters said, another oil embargo or an air-pollution crisis would be likely to trigger the commercial development of the fuel.

As part of the search for viable new fuels, the US Energy Department helped sponsor a rally in Detroit for cars burning alternative fuels. The event, the Society of Automotive Engineers' methanol marathon, was a 1,100-mile(1,770 km), five-day road rally that ended earlier this month. General Motors last November provided engineering students from 15 universities with Chevrolet Corsicas, which they converted to run on a mixture of methanol and petrol.

London Stock Market Report

U.K. STOCKS OFF POST-CRASH HIGH AS WALL ST FALTERS

LONDON, MAY 17, REUTER - SHARES WERE WELL OFF TODAY'S POST-CRASH HIGH THIS AFTERNOON AS WALL STREET GREETED A LOWER THAN FORECAST U.S. TRADE DEFICIT WITH AN UNEXPECTED FALL. THE 8.86 BILLION DLR MARCH TRADE GAP WAS WELL BELOW THE 10.1 BILLION EXPECTED AND EARLIER BOOSTED THE FTSE 100 SHARE INDEX TO 2 NEW POST-CRASH HIGH OF 2166.3, 29.6 POINTS UP ON THE DAY.

"THE MARKET HERE ROSE BELIEVING THE TRADE DATA WOULD CHEER STREET BUT INSTEAD NEW YORK SEEMS TO HAVE TAKEN IT AS A GING SIGN THE ECONOMY'S TOO STRONG, LEAVING US OUT IN THE ," SAID ONE DEALER. BY 1434 GMT THE FTSE 100 WAS 17.4 POINTS T 2154.1 ON A MODERATE TURNOVER OF 438.5 MLN SHARES.

DEALERS SAID IT SEEMED THE U.S. MARKETS HAD TAKEN THE STRONG IN IN U.S. EXPORTS REPORTED AS A SIGN THE ECONOMY WAS NOT SLOWING AS QUICKLY AS THOUGHT AND THIS RESUSCITATED FEARS OF FURTHER INTEREST RATE HIKES.

THE TRADE FIGURES DID HELP THE DOULAR SHARPLY HIGHER THOUGH WHICH IN TURN AIDED BIG DOLLAR EARNERS HERE, ICI GAINED 15P TO 1,238, GLAXO ADDED 6P TO 1,388, BRITISH AEROSPACE ROSE 10P TO 631, AND REUTERS CLIMBED 23P TO 813. CLOSER TO HOME THE MARKET DID GET SOME CHEER FROM INDUSTRIAL PRODUCTION FIGURES WHICH POINTED TO A SOFT LANDING FOR THE BRITISH ECONOMY DESPITE THE SQUEEZE ON CONSUMER SPENDING.

London Gold

LONDON, MAY 17, REUTER - GOLD BULLION FNDED THE DAY TRADING BRISKLY, AND CLOSED AT 370.25/370.75 DLRS AN OUNCE, ITS LOWEST LEVEL FOR 32 MONTHS.

THIS COMPARES WITH ITS AFTERNOON FIX OF 371.90 AND TUESDAY'S 374.00/374.50 DLR CLOSE. DEALERS SAID GOLD WAS INFLUENCED BY A FIRM DOLLAR, AFTER NEWS OF THE LOWER THAN EXPECTED 8.86 BILLION DLR U.S. MARCH

TRADE SHORTFALL. BUT SUPPORT WAS SEEN NEAR 370.00 DLRS AND GOLD MAY HOLD ABOVE THIS LEVEL IN THE SHORT TERM. WEAKNESS IN GOLD PULLED PLATINUM DOWN TO 7-1/2 MONTHS LOWS OF 504.00 DLRS AGAINST A BACKGROUND OF WEAK NYMEX LEVELS.

London Money Market

LONDON, MAY 17, REUTER - STERLING MONEY RATES WERE AROUND 1/8 POINT FIRMER IN THE LONGER MATURITIES REFLECTING THE POUND'S WEAKNESS IN THE FACE OF THE DOLLAR'S RELENTLESS RISE. STERLING WAS TRADING AT A 20 HONTH LOW OF AROUND 1.6150, AROUND 2-1/2 CENTS BELOW LAST NIGHT'S LONDON CLOSE, AFTER BETTER THAN EXPECTED U.S. TRADE FIGURES GAVE THE DOLLAR A FRESH BOOST. "THE MARKET HASN'T REACTED AS NERVOUSLY AS SOME OF US THINK

IT OUGHT TO," SAID A SENIOR DEALER AT WARBURG DISCOUNT. THE BENCHMARK THREE MONTH INTERBANK RATE WAS 1/16 LOWER AT 12-7/8 3/4 BUT FOUR MONTH TO ONE YEAR RATES HAD GAINED BETWEEN 1/16 AND 1/8 POINT, TAKING THEM ALL TO 13.00 12-7/8.

Wall Street Market Report

NEW YORK, May 17, (Reuter): Wall Street stocks erased an early advance after traders studied the US trade data that initially spurred gains. A much smaller than expected March trade gap lifted stocks and bonds, but a 7.4 pct rise in exports raised concern the economy may not be cooling enough to assure that interest rates had peaked.

The Dow was about unchanged at 2454 after rising to 2460 in early trading. Declining issues had just about pulled even with gainers. Speaking generally of the report, economists said the trade deficit is shrinking but not likely to produce substantial improvement this year.

TOKYO STOCKS CLOSE SLIGHTLY FIRMER

TOKYO, MAY 17, REUTER - SHARE PRICES CLOSED SLIGHTLY FIRMER, TURNOVER WAS LIGHT, AND TRADE NARROW-BASED. THERE WERE SOME DEALERS AND INDIVIOUALS IN THE MARKET, BUT MOST SAT OUT
AGAIN TODAY TO WATCH FOR FURTHER DEVELOPMENTS IN THE UNCERTAIN POLITICAL AND CURRENCY RATE SITUATIONS, BROKERS SAID.

"IT IS NOT A WEAK MARKET. BUYING IS WAITING ON THE SIDELINES," SAID KAZUMA KITAI, DIRECTOR OF JAPANESE EQUITIES

AT COUNTY NATWEST SECURITIES JAPAN LTD. THE KEY 225-SHARE NIKKEI INDEX FIRMED 66.00 POINTS, OR 0.19 PCT, TO 33,992.45. IT WOVED BETWEEN A HIGH OF 34,039.72 IN EARLY AFTERNOON TRADE AND A LOW 33,946.85 NEAR THE CLOSE.

THE NIKKE! SURGED 210.16 POINTS ON TUESDAY. RISES LED FALLS BY SIX TO FIVE WITH 477 ISSUES HIGHER, 385 LOWER AND 212 UNCHANGED IN TURNOVER OF 800 MLM SHARES AGAINST'

600 MLN ON TUESDAY.
THE BROADER FIRST SECTION INDEX, OR TOPIX, FIRMED 3.32 TO 2,523.45 AFTER GAINING 14.44 POINTS ON TUESDAY. "BUYING HAS BEEN SPORADIC. THERE IS LITTLE ACTION ON A SECTOR BY SECTOR BASIS," SAID ONE BROKER. SECTOR BY SECTOR BASIS," SAID ONE BROKER.

THE MAIN GAINERS WERE SECURITIES HOUSE, SHIPBUILDING, SERVICE, RAILWAY/BUS, PHARMACEUTICAL, CREDIT/LEASE, ROLLING STOCK, PULP/PAPER, RETAIL AND REAL ESTATE SHARES.

THE MAIN LOSERS WERE BANK, NON-LIFE INSURANCE, GAS, PRECISION INSTRUMENT, COMMUNICATIONS, MINING, OIL AND

WAREHOUSE ISSUES. MTHERE IS A FEELING WE ARE HEARING THE END OF THE POLITICAL TURNOIL FOR THE TIME BEING, " SAID KITAL AT COUNTY NATIMEST. "THE WORST THING FOR THE MARKET IS UNCERTAINTY." INVESTORS WERE WAITING TO SEE IF FORMER PRIME MINISTER

YASUHIRO NAKASONE WILL TESTIFY BEFORE PARLIAMENT. SOURCES IN THE RULING LIBERAL DEMOCRATIC PARTY (LDP) SAID TODAY THAT NAKASONE WILL LIKELY TESTIFY BEFORE PARLIAMENT ON MAY 24 ABOUT HIS ROLE IN THE RECRUIT SHARE SCANDAL.

WPP to acquire Ogilvy

NEW YORK, May 17, (Reuter): WPP Group PLC, which won the hand of Ogilvy Group Inc. with a sweetened buyout offer, yester-day began assuring stockholders, clients and creative staff that the Madison Avenue advertising giant founded by David Ogilvy can be happily married to its British suitor. "We are not seeking to consolidate in any way any aspect of the operation." WPP chief executive Martin Sorrell told a news conference.

Ogilvy's board yesterday agreed to the acquisition by WPP Group for $864 million, or $54 a

The deal will create the world's second-largest advertising firm in terms of billings to clients. A cash tender for Ogilvy stock will begin within five business days.

The deal must be approved by a two-third's vote of the shareholders of both companies. But the major hurdle was surmounted when Ogilvy's managers, initially critical of the deal, changed their pitch after the offer was sweetened twice and assurances of artistic independence were made.

"I believe this is absolutely the best deal we could have achieved for our shareholders," Ogilvy chairman Kenneth Roman said at the news conference.

Under the merger, Roman will remain in his current post and run Ogilvy as an autonomous unit for WPP. He will also serve as vice-chairman of a newly established strategic planning committee of WPP.

Sorrell, who made an unlikely success out of the buyout of the J. Walter Thompson agency in a hostile takeover, brushed aside the comments. He said they were not applicable since there would be no merger of the two companies' advertising businesses.

iran to resume gas exports to Soviet Union

NICOSIA, Cyprus, May 17, (AP): Iranian Oil Minister Gholamreza Aqazadeh yesterday agreed to resume annual exports of 2-3 billion cubic metres of natural gas to the Soviet Union starting next year. according to Tehran Radio.

He also said that Iran would like to use the Sovjet Union as a transit point for gas sales to other European countries.

Tehran Radio, monitored in Nicosia, said that the agreement to resume exports was reached in a meeting with Soviet Minister of Roads, Nikolai Konarev, who is heading a high-ranking economic delegation in Tehran.

Export of Iranian gas to the USSR was halted in 1980 over a price dispute. Konarey, who is the head of a joint Soviet-Iranian Commission to promote co-operation between the two countries, reiterated his country's willing-ness to buy 2-3 billion cubic metres of natural gas from Iran, the radio said.

But the issue of exporting franian gas to other European coun-tries through the USSR will be discussed in meetings of the joint commission, the radio said.

Aqazadeh said that sales of natural gas were important in upgrading relations between the two countries. A string of cooperation agreements have been signed recently.

The Soviets have agreed to help rebuild the grant Isfahan steel complex, manufacture hydroelectric plants, and con-struct oil platforms in the Caspian Sea.

The Isfahan steel complex. built by the Soviets in the 1970s. was all but destroyed by Iraqi air attacks in the eight-year Iran-Iraq war, which halted last August with a UN-sponsored ceasefire.

The Soviet Union also looks to benefit from a resurgence of anti-Western sentiment in Iran.

Panic buying spreads to matches

MOSCOW, May 17, (Reuter): Panic buying, which has emptied Moscow shops of salt, has spread to matches, the trade union daily Trud said today. The newspaper, which yesterday reported that unfounded rumours of shortages had sparked mass buying of salt, said matches were not in great demand.

A shopkeeper interviewed by Trud said that two days ago he had sold 2,000 boxes of matches —the number he usually sold in a Trade officials told the paper that there was no real reason for a "matches boom" as match factories were working at full capacity and shops had been sent their full supplies.

"In any case, fears are unfounded. We have enough reserves," one official said. "There is just no need to give way to panic.

Recent shortages have included soap, toothpaste and detergent, and sugar rationing was introduced in Moscow last month for the first time since the late 1940s.

Inflation dominated talks, says Conable

ANKARA, May 17, (Reuter): World Bank President Barber Conable said concern over inflation running at 62.5 per cent a year dominated his talks with Turkish leaders on Monday but he added the government was set to fight it.

'I must say that Prime Minister Turgut Ozal is determined to go on with his anti-inflationary programme and he is committed to it," he told a news conference.

"It is important that the inflation rate comes down. If the government fails to reduce it, this will have bad impacts over the economy, and since we are accountable for the money we lend it will affect our approach towards the Turkish economy, said Conable, paying a four-day visit to Turkey.

"We do not make loans just to be nice to our member countries."

Inflation peaked at a post-1980 high of 87.5 per cent in November 1988, then started falling with the help of a series of emergency deflationary packages.

Turkey's debt to the World Bank and its affiliates totalled $5.01 billion at the end of 1988. The World Bank has so far granted it credits totalling $9.13 billion.

"Turkey is one of our strongest client countries with which we've had a long relationship and expect a growing ongoing relationship in the future." Conable said.

He said his talks with the government also focused on a five-year development plan starting in 1990. This seeks to return to growth policies without stok-

Gold giants merger bid fails

LONDON, May 17, (AP): The South African-controlled gold producer, Minorco S.A., con-ceded defeat last night in its battle to take over British-based Consolidated Gold Fields PLC.

Michael Edwardes, Minorco's chief executive, said his company's bid - the largest in British business history — would lapse today following the refusal of a New York court to lift its injection forbidding his company from buying more Gold

The two companies are dominant in their industry: Minorco, based in Luxembourg, is the world's largest gold producer in the non-communist world and Gold Fields is No. 2.

Edwardes said Minorco continued to be the largest single shareholder in Gold Fields, with a nearly 30 per cent stake, and would "keep the position under close review.

He said: "We will now energetically implement our strategy of transforming Minorco into an operating company. Minorco is now a familiar name in the market, both in Britain and overseas, and has a very positive future.

Rudolph Agnew, Gold Fields' chief executive, said he was "highly delighted" with the result of the battle, calling it "a tremendous victory."

GCC industry ministers to meet

KUWAIT, May 17, (KUNA):

The Guif Co-operation Council industry ministers are scheduled to meet in Riyadh on May 23-24. An expert meeting will be held in Riyadh on Tuesday and Wednesday to prepare for the eighth GCC industrial co-operation ministerial conference.

Assistant Commerce Undersecretary for Industrial Affairs Ali Abdullah Al Binali will head the Kuwaiti delegation to the preparatory meetings, an official source at the Ministry of Trade and Industry here said today. Binali is accompanied by some officials of the ministry.

Rift still evident, says bankers

Banks press G-7 to back new Third World loans

NEW YORK, May 17, (Reuter): Leading international banks, persisting with an idea the US Treasury has rejected, have urged the Group of Seven industrial nations to use IMF and World Bank resources to back new loans to troubled debtor nations, a senior US Banker said

The banker, who declined to be identified, also said banks told Deputy Group of Seven finance ministers at a meeting yesterday that if they had to consider relief on old loans they would prefer to reduce interest rather than principal. This, too, runs counter to the treasury position. "I don't think opinions were changed on either side," the banker said of yesterday's talks, the first time the G-7 — the United States, Japan, West Germany, Britain, France, Italy and Canada — had invited private bankers to a formal meeting.

Japanese Vice Finance Minister Toyoo Gyohten conveyed a similar impression. "We listened to the banks' views and they listened to ours, and that was very useful for us," he told Reuters. "The banks have their own wishes and their own desired approaches, and we have ours."

Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady unveiled a debt plan March 10 that, in a bold shift of strategy, sought to spur economic growth in the Third World by reducing the burden of existing debt rather than adding to it.

Brady added, however, that countries such as Mexico would still need new loans on top of debt reduction and that banks should be encouraged to put up fresh

Seizing on this point, leading inter-national banks, many of which are reluc-tant to forgive part of their old loans, wrote to Brady last week expressing concern that the focus of the debate had shifted almost exclusively to debt reduction. They said it would also be necessary for the International Monetary Fund and the lending. Guarantee of repayment would be at the top of the banks' wish list. "A core group of international banks will respond to new money requests where Brady's plan is being dogged not only by bank reluctance but also by divisions within the G-7 on how much money the IMF and World Bank should commit to finance debt reduction and to support interest on the old debt that would remain.

This rift was still evident in yesterday's meeting, the banker said. "I don't think the G-7 have their full act together, and that made it difficult to reach con-

Organisation may prevent hiding mishaps

MOSCOW, May 17, (Reuter): Nuclear power utilities from more than 30 countries have formed an organisation that its founders said yesterday could help prevent concealment of nuclear accidents.

Lord Marshall, chairman of Britain's Central Electricity Generating Board, told a news conference the World Association of Nuclear Operations (WANO) would create "peer pressure" on members to disclose accidents at plants.

"We are going to operate a policy of glasnost," he said, referring to Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's openness drive. "I cannot imagine significant events not being reported."

Lord Marshall, elected chairman of WANO's board at its two-day founding conference here, said the Soviet Union was trying to balance the need for increased nuclear power with public hostility to the industry after the Chernobyl disaster.

He said a team of British experts was being sent to the Soviet Union to consult on the much-criticised design of the RBMK reactor that exploded in April, 1986 at the Chernobyl nuclear power plant, killing 31 people and sending a cloud of radioactive particles across

Signs of slower economic growth abounded as members of the Federal Open Market Committee gathered for a closed-door meeting yesterday to set US interest rate and monetary policy through June. Exports jump

US trade deficit narrows to $8.86 billion

WASHINGTON, May 17, (Reuter): The US trade deficit narrowed to $8.86 billion in March from a revised $9.82 billion in February, the Commerce Department said

Exports jumped 7.4 per cent to a record $30.78 billion in March, outpacing a three per cent rise in imports to $39.64 billion, the department said.

The improvement in the March delicit sur-passed Wall Street expectations and was even more dramatic considering that the February shortfall was revised downward from the previously reported $10.50 billion.

The dollar and bonds jumped on the news of the better that expected trade figure.

The March increase in exports, the first since December, was broadly based and included a surge in shipments of manufactured goods, while the import rise was made up mostly of industrial supplies and oil, the

Despite the latest deficit reduction, most economists doubt that the country can come close this year to matching the dramatic 1988 improvement in the trade balance when the deficit fell to $119.76 billion from a record $152.12 billion in 1987.

In the first quarter of 1989 the deficit was a seasonally adjusted $27.36 billion compared with $32.75 billion in the same period of 1988, the government said_

Until March, export growth had tapered off substantially beginning in the latter part of 1988 as the value of the dollar rebounded over the past several months. That ended a three-year period of decline during which American goods became cheaper overseas.

Also hindering trade-balance progress has been a steady climb in imports, despite signs that the US economy has been slowing in recent months, which should reduce Americans' demand for foreign goods.

A sharp jump in the price of oil has also slowed progress. America's oil bill rose more than $450 million to $3.74 billion in March, reflecting a 7.3 per cent rise in the volume of imported oil and a jump in the average price to $15.97 a barrel from $15.08 in February and $13.10 in December.

The Unites States had a trade surplus with Western Europe in March of $397 million, the largest in six years.

The deficit with Japan, Washington's biggest trade problem, fell slightly to $4.22 billion in March from $4.65 billion in February, the department said. The deficit with the newly industrialising nations of Southeast Asia also declined to $1.16 billion from $1.77 billion. The dollar shot higher immediately after the trade report, pushing past the 2-1/2 year high reached earlier in the week.

Satyajit Ray directs Ruma Guha and Soumitra in his latest film 'Ganashatru'

Art film scene hotting up

Ray, the master, back in form again

By Firoze Rangoonwalla

THE art film scene in India is hotting up again with two of the foremost directors completing their new masterpieces and awaiting the results. For long. Satyajit Ray and Mrinal Sen have been known for cradling off-beat cinema, primarily in their own tongue Bengali and occasionally in Hindi.

Pure cinema of art, realism and lyricism started with Satyajit Ray's Pather Panchali in 1955. Ray for the first time created universal appeal out of provincial ethos and made the world aware that Indian cinema can also be true and uncompromising. He is the filmmaker, who has won the maximum international awards and honours, the latest being the legend of honour presented by the French President, to him in Calcutta.

After his last film Ghare Baire (Home and the World). Ray was forced to withdraw due to ill health. Imagine a creative genius whose only joy is to make films being deprived of the work which is after his own heart. Yet, Ray did not lose heart. He kept himself busy with his son Sandip's TV serials, some literary writing and editing of a children's magazine, apart from a short documentary on his poet

When the doctors at last gave the green signal, he picked himself up. He wanted to film a story by himself called Sakha Parsakha. But the doctors had warned him against too much movement, travelling or outdoor shooting. So he chose Henrik Ibsen's 100 years old play, An Enemy of the People, which could be completely filmed on indoor sets. Adapted totally to Indian conditions, the Bengali film Ganashatru will be Ray's 26th, in 35 years of his career, at the age of 67.

During my visit to Calcutta, I had met Ray at Indrapuri Studio as he was about to complete his last shooting on the set of a temple. Ray revealed: "I have done the whole thing using four major and some minor studio sets: The play is completely adapted to the atmosphere in India, or rather a small town in Bengal, with the characters having the Indian ethos in our context. The play only provides a and is expected to be released in India around October. The stageplay was done for the threatre by European film directors and is still popular on the London stage. The central role of the scientist Dr Stockmann has been changed to Dr Ashoke Gupta, played by Ray's favourite actor Soumitra Chatterji who has done a dozen films with nim. It is a struggle of honesty and progressive thinking against corruption and archaic Ray wants to say that today there are more people favouring evil (against their own conscience) and thus opposing the lone fighters for truth. That is how the doctor becomes an enemy of the people, for whose benefit he is waging the whole war.

Ray started shooting in December and the principal lensing was over by February, a record as well as a lesson to others. Ray kept up his medical schedule, along with his sense of humour. "My heart specialist decided that I should make this film. It would be less of a strain and he could always keep me here under close scrutiny," he said while chatting to some foreign visitors on the set.

But Ray also asserted that the old European theme is absolutely suited to the present situation, mainly in West Bengal, where drinking water often gets polluted leading to disease and death. The Norwegian spa with bad water supply in Ibsen's play has been changed to a temple where the pipes are in a bad condition. The angle of religion adds a new controversial dimension to the story, since vested interests always mislead people on this basis. It is also Ray's answer to Raj Kapoor's Ram Teri Ganga Maili, where a sexy damsel was made a symbol of the polluter Ganges River, which is considered holy.

Ray has also worked harder on the doctor's domestic and human relationships. His wife (Ruma Guha) and daughter (Mamta Shankar) support him, but his younger brother (Dhritiman Chatterii) takes a stand against him along with some shrewd townsmen who oppose the temple being closed and the water cleaned. Yet the young folk of the place help the doctor and make their voice felt. Also involved is a newspaper editor whose policy wavers. The film is made at an amazingly low cost of one and a half lakh dollars or Rs 23 lakhs. But it is sure to bring in rich rewards of quality as well as collections from the world market.

The other leading director Mrinal Sen, the stormy doyen of Indian cinema, has also made his 26th film within a span of 33 years. It is Ek Din Achanak made in Hinds with stars of Bombay and Bengal and mainly meant for Indian TV. But being made on celluloid, the 105 minute film will also be exploited theatrically and internationally. It met a small set-back when rejected at the recent Berlin festival, on the grounds of having no sub-titles, another case of bungling by the NFDC which has produced it.

Anyway, Sen is not the type to keep mum He is sure to travel to different lands with the sub-titled print or cassette and snap up some deals as well as awards.

The film titled Suddenly One Day, in English, deals with a poignant family situation, where the aged father goes out on a rainy evening and does not return. Days, weeks and months pass but there is no sign of him. The family members, who had always taken the retired scholar for granted, now begin to rethink about what went wrong.

The film is structured to show the mother, the three young ladies and the others close to the man, trying to remember their relationships with him. And each time the old man appears in fragmented flash-backs with the periods all mixed up. This study of the past and present provides a new insight into the man's character and a new 'story' emerges. But its truth is still kept a mystery. Sen says with an enigmatic smile: "Every one of us, big or small, has an area of mediocrity. When we become aware of it, we face a crisis in life. Mine is a human commitment for a continuous search of oneself."

Like Ray, Sen has also made a largely studio-based film, with a few outdoors, like scenes of the city of Calcutta observing a strike. But he has made up for this with an array of starry names like Shriram Lagu, (in the central role), Shabana Azmi, Aparna Sen, Uttra Baokar and Roopa Ganguly (who has become more famous as Draupadi of TV serial "Mahabharat"). Let's hope the two art films again put India prominently on the world film map.

selection of music from great 0.15 Cautoons stage production of the last 160 9.45 Turn Tac Wa Al Affa 1.65 World News via years of composition and styles of composition and s operas of Webber, Lehar and of course Gilbert and Sullivan, through to the great Broadway production of the '30s and '40s

The programme will probainclude individual favourites and perhaps a few of the tunes will become new favourites before it ends.

The musicals that today enliven the New York and London stage carry on traditions that extend back to the light operas of the 19th century, the Victorian Music Hall and the American Vaudeville Theatre.

Among all art forms, the musical theatre is one of those most demanding of talent. Putting together a musical requires the combined efforts of the lyricist, the director, the set designer, the costume designer, the choreographer, to say nothing of the actors, singers and dancers who display their talent at every performance. LAST Sunday the JUNIOR TIMES was honoured when a young reader, Selma Dervisberg, accepted an invitation to make a very special visit.

She started playing the piano, under her mother's influence (who also loves music and playing the piano), since she was four-and-a-half-year old. She enjoyed learning how to play this grand instrument and thereby continued practising and taking lessons.

Now she takes a weekly one-hour lesson, but if you hear her perform you will probably feel she is in no need for tutoring. If time permits, she practises every day; however if she is tight on time, she practises once every other day but for a longer interval.

Although Selma is very fond of Mozart and Chopin, she listens to a lot of pop music as well. She likes many groups and singers but her favourite is the famous Michael Jackson.

Besides playing the piano, Selma enjoys reading (she never misses the JUNIOR TIMES!), playing sports, especially tennis and ice-skating. The latter enjoyed best on real ice in her homeland Yugoslavia. This fascinating young girl also loves animals and has a pet parrot whom she is currently teaching how to speak.

Selma, we salute you!

But I thought you said all men were stupid," said one of her friends, "and that you'd never marry?" "Yes, I did," she replied, "but then I found one who asked me."

George had reached the age of forty-six, and not only was he still unmarried but he had never even had a girlfriend. "Come along now, George," said his father. "It's high time you got yourself a wife and set-tled down. Why, at your age I'd been married twenty years.'

"But that was to Mum," said his son. "You can't expect me to marry a stran-

Harry was madly in love with Betty, but couldn't pluck up enough courage to pop the question face to face. Finally he decided to ask her on the telephone. "Darling!" he blurted out, "will you marry me?"

"Of course, I will, you silly boy," she replied, "Who is it speaking?"

Poor old Steve sent his photograph off to a Lonely Hearts Club. They sent it back saying they weren t that lonely ...

I think my wife is trying to tell me something," said the unfortunate husband, "-she keeps wrapping my sandwiches in a road map!

Young Andrew was being interviewed by his girlfriend's father. "So." said that august personage, "you want to be my son-in-law, do you?"

"Not particularly," said Andrew tactlessly, "but if I want to marry your daughter I haven't much choice,

"My wife's an angel she's never got anything to wear, she's always up in the air and forever harping on about something ...

"Do you think, Professor, that my wife should take up the piano as a career?

"No, I think she should put down the lid as a favour.'

KACH thank the UAS

By Manal Elsheikh Arab Times stat!

ON Sunday, May 14, Margaret, Al Sayer, and a few of the other volunteers of Kuwait Association for Children in Hospital (KACH) met Ken Parker and Nahida Zikrayan, the elementary school headmaster and the activities director of the Universal American School (UAS) Kuwait. Together, the group visited several of the elementary classrooms to collect children's donations of toys, books and money.

Of the many classes that participated in the donations, grade 4-4 and grade 6-1 were appointed as the most enthusiastic.

We took this opportunity to speak to a few of the donors and find out how they really felt about giving away some of their belongings.

Reema Karam

Grade 4-4 Donated both toys and books. She was not sad that she gave them to the hospital as she felt that she had grown. out of them.

Dana Al Awqati Grade 4-4

Donated toys. She didn't mind giving the toys away at all as she has a whole room full of toys and so she did not need them.

Priya Padmanabhan Grade 4-4

Priya donated toys and books. She was glad she gave away her things because she did not need them and felt that those in hospital will be happier with them - she has lots more!

Zuhair Beidoun Grade 4-4

Donated toys and books; again this young man was pleased that he was donating his things as he has lots of toys and is not in need of them all.

Abdul Qadir Al Samadi

Grade 4-4 Donated books. Abdul Qadir read the books so frequently that he was glad to see them go so that other children could enjoy them too.

Mark Tanas Grade 4-4

Donated books. He was sad to see the books go but feit that it was for a good cause and hopes that those who read them will be as happy with them

All of the eight and nine-year olds wish those in hospital a fast recovery and hope they enjoy their hospital

The volunteers left the UAS with bags full of toys and books and an envelope of money. For them hard work was yet to come. Now all the toys and books were to be sorted out, cleaned and introduced to those in the KACH would like to take this opportunity to thank the UAS and all the children for their kindness.

If you would like to donate to the association leave a message and your telephone number at the Amiri hospital's Public Relations Department. It is as simple as that!

Before 1973, the last time rain fell in the Desierto de Atacama was over 400 years ago.

The first name of the Queen's father was Albert. However, he chose the name George, when he became king in 1936, out of respect for his great grandmother, Queen Victoria, who had requested that no future king of England should have the same name as her husband, Prince Albert.

The Chinese were the first to use fingerprints as a method of identification as far back as 700 AD.

People in Iceland are listed in telephone directories by their first names, not their surnames.

Cryptoquizzes

A cryptoquiz is a list of related words put into a simple code. Spot familiar words by their "patterns" of repeated or double letters, and you can solve the rest, for if a G stands for M in one word, it will be the same throughout the list. A new code is used for each cryptoquiz.

Dear Junior readers,

During the summer, many of us may become a little lazy and neglect exercise due to Kuwait's well known heat. Staying at home and watching the video all day is not a good idea though. ...

Your brain needs regular exercise. This can be obtained via sensible reading and mind games or Try to read as much as you can. Read anything you get your hands on: a novel, magazine, newspaper, or even a dictionary. This will improve your vocabulary and help you get out of sticky situations by quick thinking. Kuwait currently has quite a few excellent bookshops with a grand variety of books and magazines to choose from. Mind games may sound rather boring but we really enjoy most of them without actually realising their advantages. Such games include the very are printed pictures, for the younger of you, and printed designs for the elder. Try colouring when you are in different moods: happy, aggressive, cheerful, upset, disappointed, frustrated or bared. Write your mood in pencil on the back of the paper and then you may be able to see contrasts in the colours you use and the moods you were in. For example when you are angry you may have used dark blues and blacks but while you were happy perhaps you used yellows, oranges, reds and greens! Do not neglect your brain cells during the summer, if you do getting back to school work will be so much more difficult.

dummy's ten and East made a good play when he withheld the kingnot that it made any difference. Declarer won the ace and took two rounds of clubs, ending in dummy. Now declarer made West pay a heavy price for his double.

If West could ruff a diamond, that meant that East held five diamonds headed by the ten, and the suit was not going to run. So declarer led dummy's singleton diamond and, when East followed low, he finessed the nine! As a result, he had no problem collecting all the tricks.

With hindsight it is easy to say that West would have done better not to double seven clubs. East To double a freely-bid slam for might have led a diamond anyway,

YOUR STARS

Aries (March 20 - April 18)

You will be able to resolve an outstanding matter, but only if you do not delay. This is a good moment to catch up on some unanwered post. Make sure you have not left any bills unpaid. Be sincere.

Your mood will not be all that good but there will be some news that should make you feel better. You should not become involved in a difference of opinion between married friends. Something you had feared might not happen now. Be tolerant.

Gemini (May 20 - June 20)

You will be able to obtain some good results but you must work - it might be too late. However, if you are in too great a hurry there is a danger that younnay miss some vital point. Be fair.

Cancer (June 21 - July 21)

You will have to deal with an irate person but if you keep calm you will save the day. Your friends will stand by you and this will be a great comfort to you. You should avoid drinking more than you know is enough. Be scrupulous.

You should work hard but without allowing work to interfere with your family life. Try to think a little more positively and do not dwell so much on the past. Make sure you do not do anything that is not entirely legal. Be tidy.

Virgo (Aug 22 - Sept 21) The prospects are good but you will still have to work hard to achieve your ends. A problem that has been bothering you will be nearer to a solution. You should avoid taking on new commitments if you are not sure you can meet them. Be magnanimous.

Libra (Sept 22 - Oct. 22)

You are liable to confuse what you would like to be with what is. If you think you have lots of time you are wrong, so get a move on. Make sure you do not expose yourself to infection. Be rational.

Scorpio (Oct 23 - Nov. 21)

You should not spend too much of your time dealing with secondary matters to the detriment of what is really important. Your lucky numbers are 7 and 22. Do not hesitate to ask what has happened if something you had expected has not arrived.

Sagittarius (Nov 22 - Dec 21 You will feel quite sure of yourself at first, but soon you will regain your self-confidence. A few changes will have to be made but do consider them most carefully first. You should listen attentively to what others are saying. Be

Capricorn Dec 22 - Jan 191

You will find it easier to deal with you daily tasks. Made sure you do not impose on others and do not allow others to impose on you. No need to have doubts about your own abilities. Be patient.

Do try to make allowances when dealing with a person who is in a bad mood. You are going about things in the right way, but you must not slacken your efforts. You Pisces (Feb 19 - March 19) You must make some changes and something you learnt recently will help you to make them for the better. Make sure you get enough exercise, but do not exhaust yourself. Something you were told in confidence should not be revealed.

Be considerate.

Tough Pirates sink Reds.

Kramer pitches one-hitter

NEW YORK, May 17, (AP): Randy Kramer pitched a one-hitter yesterday in his fourth Major-League start, allowing only Ron Oester's two-out double in the eighth innings as the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Cincinnati Reds 5-0. Kramer was trying to become the 14th rookie to pitch a no-hitten and the first since Oakland's Mike Warren against Chicago on Sept 29, 1983. His bid seemed in jeopardy when Herm Winningham opened the seventh with a hard grounder that bounced off first baseman Sid Bream's

Mini-Games get under way

CURIUM, Cyprus, May 17, (AP): A mini-Olympics for some of the world's smallest states got under way today with a torch-lighting ceremony in the ruins of an ancient Greek temple overlooking the Mediterranean Sea.

Twenty-two girls, clad in white classical Greek robes, glided between the pillars of the 2,700-year-old temple to the music of flute and the beat of a drum in a repetition of the ritual that preceded the original Olympics in ancient Greece.

One of the maidens lit the Olympic-style torch from a flame burning in a huge broken stone jar found in the sanctuary of the temple when it

The former heavyweight champion has been diagnosed as suffering from parkinsonism, a condition marked by slurred speech, weakness and a stiff gait. At times, Ali could barely be heard as he testified in the trial of Dr Rajko Medenica, a Yugoslav-born cancer specialsit charged with fraud by Swiss authorities.

"He improved my physical condition," Ali said of the doctor, crediting, Medenica with stopping the trembling in his hands.
Ali's third wife, Yolanda,

Indians faked injuries, says Vengsarkar

NEW DELHI, May 17. (Reuter): India cricket captain Dilip Vengsarkar has accused unnamed team-mates of cowardice and faked injuries during the recent disastrous tour of the West Indies.

Vengsarkar said in an interview with an Indian news agency that his side's 3-0 defeat by West Indies in the Tests and whitewash in the five-match oneday series was mainly due to the cowardice of his frontline bats-

"You can't do a thing if a chap is running away from the fast bowling to square leg, right in the middle of a Test match," he said. Vengsarkar attributed his own poor performance — 110 runs in the four-test series — to bad luck. Former India captain Bishen Bedi said Vengsarkar should have the courage to name the players he was accusing.

"It was unfortunate that Vengsarkar was thrust at the helm of affairs when Indian cricket was in a state of urgent buildup," said Bedi.

Another former captain, Mansur Ali Khan, said: "Vengsarkar should score a few more runs and just keep his mouth

Powerboat race poses serious questions ched the Sea Club at 8 pm, after having been on the sea for five hours. THE Kuwait Sea Club's powerboat race, held No one can take responsibility for the last Friday, was a definite success in terms of weather, but plans should have been adapted entries and organisation. gency services as a whole. If, they reason, the fire boats don't have the necessary equipment, and the Coast Guard and helicopters are not concerned with safety, when they know that their services may be required, how will they cope when the emergency is a complete surprise? And what use is a fire boat that does not have the correct equipment for putting out a fire?

Powerboat racing is a hazardous sport — but all the racers concerned were saved by their own safety equipment — and more die on the roads in Kuwait each day than in powerboat racing world-wide each year. There is an element of fear among the racers that the authorities may react to the inadequacy of the emergency services by ban-ning races instead of by improving. This would be a tragedy for the many Middle East racers, who have invested time, money and dreams in this growing sport.
